NEW QUESTION: 1

You have an Azure DevOps organization named Contoso and an Azure subscription.

You use Azure DevOps to build a containerized app named App1 and deploy App1 to an Azure container instance named ACM.

You need to restart ACI1 when App1 stops responding.

What should you do?

- A. Add a readiness probe to the YAML configuration of App1.
- B. Add a liveness probe to the YAML configuration of App1.
- C. Use IP flow verify in Azure Network Watcher.
- D. Use Connection Monitor in Azure Network Watcher.

Answer: A

Explanation:

Explanation

For containerized applications that serve traffic, you might want to verify that your container is ready to handle incoming requests. Azure Container Instances supports readiness probes to include configurations so that your container can't be accessed under certain conditions. The readiness probe behaves like a Kubernetes readiness probe. For example, a container app might need to load a large data set during startup, and you don't want it to receive requests during this time.

YAML is used to setup a liveness probe.

NEW QUESTION: 2

Your network consists of one Active Directory domain. All servers run Windows Server 2008 R2.

You need to implement a storage management policy for failover clustering that uses storage area network (SAN)-based storage.

The solution must support the following requirements:

- Maintain disk space usage information
- Quota tracking by folder or by volume
- Email notifications when users exceed their quota limits. What should you do?

- A. Create and deploy NTFS file system disk quotas.
- B. Use the File Server Resource Manager (FSRM).
- C. Install and configure the Storage Manager for SANs.
- D. Use the Performance Monitor.

Answer: B

NEW QUESTION: 3

When designing the technical solution for a disaster recovery site, the PRIMARY factor that should be taken into consideration is the:

- A. maximum tolerable outage (MTO).
- B. services delivery objective.
- C. recovery time objective (RTO).
- D. recovery window.

Answer: D

Explanation:

The length of the recovery window is defined by business management and determines the acceptable time frame between a disaster and the restoration of critical services/applications. The technical implementation of the disaster recovery (DR) site will be based on this constraint, especially the choice between a hot, warm or cold site. The service delivery objective is supported during the alternate process mode until the normal situation is restored, which is directly related to business needs. The recovery time objective (RTO) is commonly agreed to be the time frame between a disaster and the return to normal operations. It is then longer than the interruption window and is very difficult to estimate in advance. The time frame between the reduced operation mode at the end of the interruption window and the return to normal operations depends on the magnitude of the disaster. Technical disaster recovery solutions alone will not be used for returning to normal operations. Maximum tolerable outage (MTO) is the maximum time acceptable by a company operating in reduced mode before experiencing losses. Theoretically, recovery time objectives (RTOs) equal the interruption window plus the maximum tolerable outage. This will not be the primary factor for the choice of the technical disaster recovery solution.
