A group of developers in your organization want to migrate their existing application into Elastic Beanstalk and want to use Elastic load Balancing and Amazon SQS. They are currently using a custom application server.

How would you deploy their system to Elastic Beanstalk?

- A. Use a Docker container that has the third party application server installed on it and that creates the load balancer and an Amazon SQS queue using the application source bundle feature.
- B. Configure an Elastic Beanstalk platform using AWS OpsWorks, deploy it to Elastic Beanstalk, and run a script that creates a load balancer and an Amazon SQS queue.
- C. Configure an AWS OpsWorks stack that installs the third party application server and creates a load balancer and an Amazon SQS queue, and then deploys it to Elastic Beanstalk.
- D. Create a custom Elastic Beanstalk platform that contains the third party application server and runs a script that creates a load balancer and an Amazon SQS queue.

Answer: A

Explanation:

Explanation

Below is the documentation on Clastic beanstalk and Docker
Clastic Beanstalk supports the deployment of web applications from Docker containers. With Docker containers, you can define your own runtime environment. You can choose your own platform, programming language, and any application dependencies (such as package managers or tools), that aren't supported by other platforms. Docker containers are self-contained and include all the configuration information and software your web application requires to run.
