NEW QUESTION: 4

You are maintaining a Microsoft SQL Server database that stores order information for an online store website. The database contains a table that is defined by the following Transact-SQL statement:

You need to ensure that purchase order numbers are used only for a single order.

What should you do?

- A. Create a new FOREIGN KEY constraint on the PurchaseOrderNumber column.
- B. Create a new UNIQUE constraint on the PurchaseOrderNumber column.

C. Create a new PRIMARY constraint on the PurchaseOrderNumber column.

D. Create a new CLUSTERED constraint on the PurchaseOrderNumber column.

Answer: B

Explanation:

You can use UNIQUE constraints to make sure that no duplicate values are entered in specific columns that do not participate in a primary key. Although both a UNIQUE constraint and a PRIMARY KEY constraint enforce uniqueness, use a UNIQUE constraint instead of a PRIMARY KEY constraint when you want to enforce the uniqueness of a column, or combination of columns, that is not the primary key.
