NEW QUESTION: 3
You are configuring NFS on a server. Select the two statements that are true.
A. Resources listed in /etc/dfs/dfstab are automatically shared on boot up.
B. Renaming a share created with the zfs set share command is not supported.
C. NFS and SMB protocols cannot be used simultaneously to share the same directory.
D. A directory cannot be shared if a subdirectory below it is already shared.
Answer: A,B
Explanation:
A: ZFS can automatically share file systems by setting the sharenfs property. Using this property, you do not have to modify the /etc/dfs/dfstab file when a new file system is shared. The sharenfs property is a comma-separated list of options to pass to the share command. The value on is an alias for the default share options, which provides read/write permissions to anyone. The value off indicates that the file system is not managed by ZFS and can be shared through traditional means, such as the /etc/dfs/dfstab file. All file systems whose sharenfs property is not off are shared during boot.
